Soviets Defeat Thrust at Velikie Luki

THE Red Army, after a big battle lasting several days, have smashed back a fierce German bid on the Kalinin front, aimed at the key town of Velikie Luki, less than 80 miles from the Latvian frontier, Reuter's special correspondent cabled last night from Moscow.

Kuban Break-through

Throwing in powerful infantry forces the Germans pressed back the Russians, who for some days lost ground. The Soviet commanders regrouped and struck back, driving the Germans back to their starting point, and counting more than 2,000 enemy dead on the field. This is the battle reported in yesterday's Soviet communiqué as "on the Kalinin front, north-west of Moscow."

The Germans obviously attach great importance to Velikie Luki. In another Russian salient—between Kursk and Orel—Soviet troops gained an important local success in the past twenty-four hours. Smashing at enemy fortifications in the Sevsk area they drove the Germans from three important villages. The Germans brought up reinforcements, but all counter-attacks were thrown back, it was claimed.

Berlin admitted last night that the Red Army in the past twenty-four hours had achieved a breakthrough in the Kuban, where the air war has flared up to an unprecedented height. A small group of some 15 Soviet tanks, the German News Agency said, succeeded in breaking into the German lines, which were again closed behind them. The Agency added that the German troops achieved a great defensive success, all the more remarkable in view of the ten-fold Russian superiority in men and material on this narrow front.

The Luftwaffe has made day and night attacks on Kursk in the past twenty-four hours, the German News Agency claimed last night. The German bombers, according to the Berlin report, continued their attacks, and were guided to their targets by large fires still burning. Reuter's Special Correspondent in Moscow cabled that Kursk took one of the worst batterings any Russian town of comparable size has ever had to suffer. The Germans made mass raids and attacked the town five times, and the damage done was considerable. Kursk, with its 120,000 citizens, he says, will be added to the unhappily long list of Russian "martyr towns." The air offensives against Kursk were essentially an attempt to put out of action the big Soviet base and communication centre on one of the most important sectors of the whole Soviet-German front, where the Russians have been displaying initiative and activity locally for some weeks.

Reuter also reports that the Germans have accumulated an enormous quantity of ack-ack guns round Novorossisk and along their Taman line, and that they are employing nearly 1,000 'planes there.

PRESIDENT ORDERS U.S. MINERS TO RETURN

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has ordered the striking American miners to return to the pits on Monday.

He reminded the miners that it was their duty, "no less than that of their sons and brothers in the armed forces," to fulfil their essential war duty.

The statement was as follows:—

"Most of the nation's coal mines are closed because of the general strike which has taken place in defiance of the Government of the United States. I have instructed the Secretary of the Interior, who has possession of the mines for the Government, to proceed to open the mines.

"As President and Commander-in-Chief, I order and direct the miners who are not at work in the mines to return to their work by June 7. I must remind the miners that they are working for the Government on essential war work, and it is their duty, no less than that of their sons and brothers in the armed forces, to fulfil their war duty.

"Just as soon as the miners return to work the disposition of the dispute will forthwith proceed under the jurisdiction of the War Labour Board, and in accordance with customary and established procedures governing all cases of this sort."

ANOTHER STRIKE

In a telegram from Detroit, Associated Press says that production of Rolls Royce aircraft engines and Packard marine engines at the Packard motor car company's plant was virtually halted yesterday by the walk-out of several thousand workers, who objected to the "upgrading" of some negro employés.

Later an Automobile Workers' Union official stated that the Packard Motor Company workers have voted to return to work on the night shift.—(Reuter.)

YOUNG PRINTERS TALK THINGS OVER

At the Young Master Printers' conference in Commercial Buildings, Dame street, Dublin, yesterday. Included are:—Mr. Frank A. Lowe (Past Chairman, Dublin Master Printers' Association), Mr. T. P. Brindley (Dublin Chairman), Mr. W. Wilson (Belfast Chairman), Mr. J. Toner (Belfast Secretary), Mr. M. G. Short (Dublin Secretary), and Mr. George Hetherington (Dublin Treasurer).

MR. DE VALERA ON ONLY WAY TO SAFEGUARD POSITION

"Calamity If We Were To Relax"

THE difficulties of administration by a National Government in this country were compared with the task of a child trying to put three grains of shot into three different holes inside a glass covered box by Mr. de Valera yesterday, when he addressed meetings at Birr and Tullamore at the outset of a non-stop seventeen days' tour of the 34 constituencies.

The position of the child with the toy was precisely the same as that in which the unfortunate man who would be head of a Government composed as the Irish Times wanted, would find himself, said the Taoiseach. He would have to go from one group to another before he could get complete agreement. It was difficult enough normally to get agreement on details of policy, but by the suggested method they would introduce the sort of politics that had destroyed the democratic system on the continent.

Mr. de Valera admitted that many people did not want an election and said that a great many did not want a change of Government, but the evils which would flow from the prolongation of the life of the Parliament would be greater than the evils in holding a general election.

"The desperate danger would be that the country would become less vigilant, but the Defence Forces understand that, and they are standing to, as ready to meet anything that may come during this election as they have been up to now. It would be a calamity if we were to relax for a single moment."

In a passionate plea for saving the language, he said that the Government, if returned, would try to get a strong popular movement on foot for its restoration.

ANOTHER SUGAR FACTORY

Speaking of industrial policy, he said it was the intention, when the war ended, and if sugar consumption continued to rise, to establish another beet sugar factory. He claimed that the Government had loyally followed its policy, and disclosed that plans have been prepared for further industrial expansion in the post-war period. "You can see where we stand," he said. "We are not telling you that we will join up with someone else after the election, and have it as an excuse for not going forward that they would not let us.

"There is," he concluded, "only one way to safeguard the present position, and that is by giving the Government party such a majority as will amount to a demonstration of national solidarity."

Touching upon the relations between this country and Britain, Mr. de Valera said that all points in dispute between Britain and ourselves, except partition, were cleared away by the settlement of 1938. It laid the foundation for good relations between the two countries.

"We have always been anxious for these good relations, not because it was Britain or an Empire, but because they were our neighbours, and wars between peoples always occur as the result of quarrels between neighbouring countries. We knew it was quite impossible to establish good relations as long as Britain interfered in our affairs. We wanted, however, to get the right foundation for good relations between the two countries, and that settlement gave us peace here in our country and laid the foundation for peace also in Britain. It was fortunate for us that that settlement had been made before the present war broke out."

He claimed that Fianna Fail was a National organisation and that the Government elected by it was a purely National Government.

"ONLY A STUNT"

"To my mind the National Government proposal is only a stunt," said Mr. de Valera. "These people have no policy to put before you and now they are trying this stunt of a National Government, which would lead to nothing but bargaining from the time it was formed until it burst. You are not so foolish as to be caught by the chaff of a National Government. It is most interesting and amusing that it should be started by the Irish Times. The Irish Times, if you please, started the talk about a National Government and it was taken up by Fine Gael because they despaired of being able to form a Government themselves."

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT NEEDED

—Mr. Cosgrave

Reiterating Fine Gael's determination to form a National Government if returned to power, and their absolute agreement with the policy of neutrality, Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, T.D., opened his election campaign yesterday by addressing unusually large audiences at Westport and Ballina.

Speaking at Westport, Mr. Cosgrave held that, so far as their relations with foreign nations were concerned, there was no difference between the political parties on the question of non-participation in the war. No party in the present contest stood on any other policy than that of non-participation in the war, and he hoped that no attempt would be made by anyone to indicate any weakness in the solid national front. From the moment that war broke out all parties were agreed, firstly, upon neutrality, and, secondly, that the Government should get special emergency powers to deal with the situation, but there was no agreement about how these powers should be used. There had been interference with business and lack of constructive effort.

THE TWO PARTIES

In the last five years of Fine Gael's administration 54,000 people were put into employment. Between 1932 and 1941 Fianna Fail put 60,000 into employment. Fine Gael, therefore, beat them by almost two to one. The agricultural industry had deteriorated. In this great agricultural country there was a shortage of bacon and potatoes, while there had been bread queues in Dublin. There was not enough butter to go around; and there was a shortage of many other items which one would expect an agricultural country to have in plenty. They were told by Government speakers that there was no difference between the policies of Fine Gael and Fianna Fail. Whatever they might think about the difference in policy, there was no doubt about the difference in result. The essential difference was that they had put before the people as a main plank in their programme the expansion of agricultural produce. They aimed at derating agricultural land up to £20 valuation, and proposed to reduce the cost of agriculture to make it worth the while of those on the land to expand the production of the land, to make money available for the development of the industry, and to lessen the numbers of those who are coming from the country and competing for jobs with those in the cities.

During these last ten years taxation had gone up. The cost of living had advanced by 50 to 60 per cent., although in England it had gone up by only 20 per cent. The country required a National Government—a Government which, by reason of the strong support of the various political parties, would draw greater confidence from the people as it faced the problems confronting it. One of the big problems remaining was that of Partition. He made no promises about it, and until there was a united national policy down here in respect of that issue, and a scheme of development leading to national prosperity, they were merely postponing its solution by emphasising the political differences which divided them in the twenty-six counties.

BALLINA MEETING

At Ballina, Mr. Cosgrave spoke to an audience who had listened already to speeches by Farmers' and Fianna Fail candidates. He told them that Fianna Fail claimed that neutrality was safe only with them. As far back as 1924 Irish representatives in Washington had made it clear that Ireland had the right to remain neutral in any war in which Great Britain might engage. Neutrality depended upon the solid strength of the people. It was their anchor, and the person who tried to break it was a saboteur.

Mr. James FitzGerald-Kenney, K.C., T.D., said that Fine Gael were putting forward a scheme of family allowances and an interest-free loan for farmers. They had a determination to win for the people the very best place possible in markets outside the country. Fianna Fail was standing on a programme of lies, claiming that it was Mr. de Valera who had kept them out of the war. It was not Mr. de Valera, but the solid determination of every person in this country that had maintained neutrality. If Mr. Cosgrave were returned he would preserve neutrality more assuredly than Mr. de Valera could ever do.

"BRITISH HAVE HONOURABLY OBSERVED AGREEMENT"

Speaking at Loughrea, Co. Galway, yesterday, Mr. Sean MacEntee, Minister for Local Government, said that in the very midst of war they had remained at peace, because the Treaty which imposed obligations on the country was abolished and also because of the agreement of 1938, by which they had regained the ports. "The British Government have honourably observed the conditions of that agreement, and, consequently, after three years of war, we live in peace as free citizens of a democratic State under a sound National Government." Despite the covert opposition of Labour, and the open opposition of Fine Gael, the Government had re-opened the flour mills, advocated extensive growing of wheat, and spent millions on building up their defences, with the result that they could have a good loaf of bread on their table.

"COALITION TOMFOOLERY"

Coalition Government is the negation of democracy, said Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, speaking at Monasterevan last night. A succession of Coalitions had destroyed democracy everywhere. Fine Gael had decided to make the formation of a Coalition Government its election programme, but it had declined to give the slightest hint as to the parties or sections with which it hoped to coalesce. It was assumed that a coalition between Fine Gael and Labour was intended. Had Labour accepted, and, if so, on what terms? Labour leaders could not maintain their policy of mysterious silence on the issue either.

Fine Gael talked of a Government of the best brains in the country. Why did they not name the people they had in mind? This attempt to sell a gold brick to the people could not succeed unless the Irish people had taken leave of their senses, and there is no sign that that had happened. Fianna Fail urged the people to reject all this tomfoolery in the name of commonsense.

Speaking at Kilfane, Co. Wexford, yesterday, Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, paid tribute to the co-operation of all parties in maintaining neutrality. Thanks to Fianna Fail policy, he said, they were now saved from hunger no matter what blockade might take place.

The basic ideas for plans to relieve affliction seemed to be generally agreed to, said General Mulcahy at a Fine Gael meeting at Fairview last night, and a National Government was wanted urgently to settle details and get the national unity necessary for putting the plans into operation. "In calling for a National Government to do this work, Mr. Cosgrave is simply interpreting the hearts and minds of the people in the country generally and of many active members of the other political parties. A great national opportunity is at hand. It is within the power of the electorate to see that it be seized."

Senator Michael Hayes said that Fine Gael had shown its willingness to co-operate with the Government. In September, 1939, and at the fall of France it was from the Opposition that the suggestion of a Defence Conference had come. All parties had stood together on neutrality and the recruitment of the Defence Forces, and in order to develop both farming and industry, Fine Gael was advocating a National Government to fight against unemployment and emigration and to encourage food production.

THE TAOISEACH'S ACHIEVEMENT

Mr. M. O'Cleary, at a meeting of Ballyhaunis Fianna Fail last night, said that, thanks to Mr. de Valera, Irishmen could now go to England and work at war-time wages, because for the first time in Irish history they were free from English military law. No other man could have got that undertaking from the British Government.

A 1927 SCHEME

Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., Independent National Government candidate, speaking at a meeting in Jury's Hotel, Dublin, last night, said Mr. de Valera had condemned the idea of national or coalition governments. There was one abortive coalition which Mr. de Valera attempted to form which he had conveniently forgotten. In 1927, when the National League Party returned to the Dail eight members, Mr. de Valera's party, who had not taken their seats, approached that party with a proposal to form a coalition, composed of Labour and the National League Party, with the adventitious support of some Independents, and with the Fianna Fail Party, who at this time had decided to enter the Dail, in the background, supporting this puppet Government for such time as it suited them to do so.

The proposal was that Mr. Thomas Johnston, the respected leader of the Labour Party, should be the head of the new Government, and that Deputy Redmond should be deputy leader. On a reshuffle it was suggested that those two places should be exchanged. The intermediary who made these proposals has since been amply rewarded by Mr. de Valera's Government for his services, out of public funds. This scheme was defeated by the defeat of the no confidence motion on the 17th August, 1927.

30/- Wage For P.O. Workers

THE treatment meted out to part-time Post Office employés proved the Post Office to be the worst employer in the country, Mr. W. Bell, chairman, stated at the annual congress of the Post Office Workers' Union in the Teachers' Hall, Dublin, yesterday. There were thousands of such workers, and in the majority of cases the wage earned was less than 30s. per week.

Mr. Bell also stated that because of Government failure to control prices firms have been enabled to pay the dividends permitted, while at the same time, due to shortage of certain commodities, they have handled a lesser quantity of goods. This did not indicate that the war meant a lowering of the standard of life for all, but that the sacrifice now, as always, was borne by the wage earners.

MR. NORTON'S POSITION

Mr. J. J. Kane, Dublin, asked during the discussion on the report: What would be the position of the General Secretary, Mr. W. Norton, T.D., in the event of his becoming the leader of the Government Party or a Minister of State in the new Dail?

Mr. Norton replied that the matter had been considered by the union national executive, and that the union need have no fear in regard to its future concerning the general secretary.

The damage being caused to the roof of the Pearse street office by the death-watch beetle was stressed by Mr. P. Cahill (Dublin). Mr. Norton said that the attention of the Department had been called to the defective condition of the building, and that they would pursue the matter. Mr Norton also alluded to the sustained efforts made by the national executive to get a general scheme of arbitration. They refused a spurious scheme of arbitration.

The organising secretary, Mr. P. J. Cairns, speaking on the report of the union hospital fund, said that it was impossible to get into a hospital in Dublin.

On a resolution, which was passed, asking the national executive to press for full pay for all sick leave, instead of the present system of half-pay after six months, and pension rate for the remainder, Mr. Cooper (Dublin) said that if there was any great illness it was due to the workers' employment. Young people coming into the service, certified healthy, had broken down.

Mr. T. P. Keane (Dublin) was elected general treasurer.

The conference adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Norton's Challenge to Mr. MacEntee

For three hours last night a big meeting in O'Connell street, Dublin, heard Labour's policy expounded by the candidates for the Dublin constituencies. The principal speakers, Mr. W. Norton, T.D., and Mr. James Larkin, senior, replied to attacks on the movement by Mr. MacEntee, Minister for Local Government and Public Health. Mr. Norton said that Mr. MacEntee's criticism did not worry him; neither did it worry his constituents in Carlow-Kildare. He challenged the Minister to produce one trade union official with the confidence of the members of his union to defend the Trade Union Act. The Manufacturers' Association were responsible for it. They compelled Mr. MacEntee to introduce it in return for the cheques given to Fianna Fail to win the last election. Mr. MacEntee knew that men and women were living in squalor, yet he had voted himself a pension of £10 a week when he went out of office.

Mr. Norton added that he would be a Minister in a Labour Government, and he would never be a Minister in any other Government.

Mr. Larkin said that the Labour movement was the only one that believed in a united Ireland. Mr. MacEntee, he said, took advantage of everyone to his own advantage, and could only indulge in scurrilous language. He denied, as suggested by Mr. MacEntee, that he had been in consultation with Mr. Norton before his selection. He had not spoken to Mr. Norton for two years. He said that he had been approached by Messrs. Hickey, Norton and Davin, T.D.'s. The Dublin organisation and, he believed, the Dublin workers, too, had given him a mandate to stand.

MR. AIKEN'S VIEW

The Minister for Co-Ordination of Defensive Measures, speaking last night at Blackrock, Dundalk, said that legislation passed by his party showed that they were not unmindful of the interests of the farming community, the workers and old age pensioners. That legislation was passed when the Government was independent of support from the Opposition.

The farmers had a party in the Dail at one time, but they kept Cumann na nGaedheal in office, and the then Government allowed the land to go to ruin and prices to decline without taking any action to counteract it.

Two further candidates were nominated in Cork yesterday for the general election. They were:—Alderman D. G. Buckley (Independent), for Cork City, and Mr. T. J. O'Donovan, outgoing T.D., one of the Fine Gael candidates for West Cork.

Dublin Nomination Centre

Dr. Lorcan Sherlock, who is being assisted by Messrs. C. Casey, K.C.; W. G. Fallon, barrister-at-law, and C. J. Murray, solicitor, will receive nominations each day at the Bolton Street Technical Schools, Dublin, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Under the recent Act which requires the returning officer to furnish voters with particulars of their numbers and where to vote, 202,000 cards will have to be sent out. These will be ready for posting about June 12th, a reporter was informed yesterday.

Judge Fawsitt Makes His Declaration

Judge Fawsitt yesterday made and subscribed before the Chief Justice the declaration required of him by the Constitution on his appointment as a Judge of Circuit Court for the Eastern Circuit.

"HEAVY LOSSES" TO AXIS BASES

Italian Islands Largely Neutralised—Mr. Stimson

MR. STIMSON, U.S. Secretary for War, stated yesterday in Washington that Axis bases on Pantellaria, Sicily and Sardinia have been largely neutralised and Allied shipping is now moving almost unmolested from one end of the Mediterranean to the other.

Mr. Stimson added: "There is evidence of heavy losses to the Axis Mediterranean bases from the Allied air pounding."

American Marauders attacked Pantellaria again on Wednesday and scored hits on many military objectives, bombs falling on buildings and in the dock areas. At the same time Lightning fighter-bombers attacked other objectives. Earlier in the day Warhawks were over on several bombing attacks.

Yesterday's Rome communiqué said that the British Navy had "renewed its shelling and air bombardments of Pantellaria," but the Allied communiqué contained no reference to warships having been in action against the island since its military installations were shelled on Sunday night and again on Tuesday.

Rome Radio said last night:—"Pantellaria is heroically resisting. Its gunners have forced a naval formation to break off shelling the fortifications. An enemy destroyer was heavily damaged. The devastation wrought by the enemy aircraft is not war. It is a savage blow dealt at a people who, after three years of the struggle, have still not given in, and will not give in. The moral of the Italians is exceedingly high. Their tenacity is inexhaustible."

Reuter states that British naval forces in the Mediterranean attacked a heavily-protected Italian convoy on Tuesday night. It is claimed that two Italian merchant ships, one destroyer and a torpedo boat were put permanently out of action by sinking or fire, and that the Allied naval force suffered no damage. The engagement is said to have taken place near the south of Italy.

German Radio stated last night that defences have been built into the reefs skirting the coast of the Italian island of Lampedusa, midway between Malta and Eastern Tunisia.

The Italian News Agency stated last night that casualties in Leghorn in the Allied raid last Friday totalled 249 killed and some 600 injured.

Colonel John Gretton, Conservative M.P. for the Burton division of Staffordshire, is resigning his seat for health reasons. He has applied for the Chiltern Hundreds. Colonel Gretton is 75.

They Have Too Much Money For 7 Pockets

IRELAND'S cattle dealers and bookmakers are not satisfied with the "austerity" suit. The seven pockets allowed are useless for carrying the large quantities of money which their occupations require, they state. They have applied, without success, to the Minister for Supplies asking to be allowed an increase in the number of pockets on their suits. The only concession he has so far made in the clothing restrictions is to allow Roman Catholic priests an extra breast pocket on the inside of their waistcoats for carrying the Sacrament.

The ordinary people are accepting "austerity" philosophically, a well-known Dublin tailor yesterday told an Irish Times reporter. The only serious restriction is that of the pockets, and when it is explained that more than seven pockets per suit this year would probably mean none at all next year, most customers accept the restriction cheerfully. Few people realise, he said, how serious the cotton position is at the present time.

Men who have been accustomed to wearing double-breasted suits are finding the ban on them a hardship. "They feel strange in single-breasted suits at first, but they will get used to them—they will have to," said the tailor.

No News of Air Liner Victims

THE Spanish Embassy in Lisbon, after being in touch with the Spanish Ministry of Foreign Affairs, stated last night that there was no confirmation of reports that British pilots had been saved by a Spanish trawler. Reports had previously been received that some British pilots had been saved in the Atlantic, although, according to the details given, there was little likelihood of them being from the British commercial 'plane shot down on Tuesday.

A radio message recorded in Lisbon stated that a Spanish fishing boat had rescued five Britons from the air liner. This Rome report followed a message from Berlin earlier yesterday which, quoting Madrid, said that six British airmen and another who was dead had been picked up by a Spanish trawler.

Rome Radio broadcast a message from Madrid last night stating that a Spanish lifeboat had "picked up five English survivors from a rubber lifeboat in the Bay of Biscay." Rome Radio claimed that the survivors were the crew of the British air liner shot down on the night of Monday-Tuesday.

Money from United Kingdom to Eire

In the Northern Ireland House of Commons yesterday, Dr. Little (Con., Down) asked the Chancellor of the Exchequer to state the total amount of money from the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland that has been forwarded to Eire by cheques, money, postal and telegraph orders, for each of the years since the outbreak of war.

Sir Kingsley Wood, in a written reply, states that the figures for money orders, including telegraphic money orders, were: 1940, £645,000; 1941, £1,185,000; 1942, £3,410,000, and for the half-year ended February, 1943, £2,350,000. Those for postal orders were: 1940, £404,000; 1941, £339,000; 1942, £425,000, and for the half-year £270,000. Figures for remittances by cheque were not available.

AGREEMENT REACHED AT ALGIERS

"Committee of Liberation" Has Been Set Up

THE French leaders, meeting in Algiers, have settled their differences and have formed a "Committee of National Liberation." This was announced last night after the French leaders had conferred for over two hours.

A special communiqué broadcast from Algiers stated:—

"The French Committee of National Liberation has been formed, comprising Generals Giraud and de Gaulle as Presidents, and General Catroux, General Georges, M. René Massigli, M. Monnet, and M. Andre Philip as members. The Committee has appointed General Catroux Commissioner for the Co-ordination of Moslem Affairs and Governor-General of Algeria.

"The Committee has decided to appoint General Bouscat Commander of the air forces in North Africa and in French West Africa, in place of General Mendigal, who has been dismissed.

"The French Committee of National Liberation will later be enlarged by the inclusion of other members. The Committee thus established is the central French power.

"The Committee directs the French war effort in all its forms and at all places. Consequently it exercises French sovereignty in all territories outside the enemy's power and the management and the defence of all French interests throughout the world. It assumes authority in all territories over all land, naval and air forces which so far were under the orders either of the French National Committee or under those of the civil and military Commander-in-Chief.

"The Committee will hand over its powers to the French Provisional Government, which will be constituted according to the law of the Republic as soon as the liberation of the metropolitan territory of France will allow of it, and at the latest when the total liberation of France is achieved.

"The Committee will pursue, in close collaboration with all Allies, the common fight, with the aim of completely freeing French and Allied territories, until total victory over all enemy Powers is achieved.

"The Committee binds itself solemnly to restore all French liberties, the laws of the Republic and the Republican régime, by destroying completely the régime of arbitrary and personal powers that is at present being imposed on the country."

One of the points still to be decided is General Giraud's status as C.-in-C.

General Nogues, Resident General of Morocco; General Mendigal, Air General in North Africa, and General Bergeret, Air General in West Africa, and former Vichy Air Minister, and all of them Giraudists, are to go.—(Reuter.)

Infant's Body Found in Sewer

An infant's mutilated body was found in a sewer of the Dublin Union on Wednesday. Dr. McGrath, State Pathologist, at the inquest opened by Dr. D. A. McErlean, City Coroner, yesterday, said the infant was newly-born and had breathed a little after birth, but not fully, and had died, as far as could be ascertained, from asphyxiation. John Roche, plumber, said that he found the body in the pipe and immediately called Dr. J. White, of the Union.

The inquest was adjourned

The will of Edsel Ford, which has been filed for probate, is estimated to amount to 200,000,000 dollars (£50,000,000), says Reuter's New York Correspondent.

HE NEVER SCRATCHES NOW!

DOG WAS A BAD CASE
My little dog scratched and bit himself so much that sores broke out. I started giving him Bob Martin's and now he is completely cured — a truly happy dog and in perfect condition. —Mrs. I.P.D.

CONSTANT scratching is a sign that food impurities have collected in your dog's bloodstream. These impurities cause intense irritation under the skin, particularly in warm weather. Since a dog's skin is non-porous, he cannot cool and purify his blood by perspiring. That's why he needs the natural blood correctives contained in Bob Martin's Condition Powders. Given regularly — one a day — Bob Martin's will safeguard your dog from scratching and other ailments so common in summer. Start now—and you'll soon know the never ending pleasure of owning a 'plus' dog!

You can get Bob Martin's in packets, 6d. and 1/-, from all chemists and corn merchants.

DULL? LISTLESS?

Little insides need the safe, GENTLE Laxative—Complaxa

The child that isn't "full of beans" can't be well. Little insides become clogged, blood becomes impoverished and the whole system needs a thorough "spring clean." Give your child Complaxa—the Complete laxative — which is coaxingly soothing though thoroughly efficient—that won't pinch or gripe and which overcomes a child's aversion to medicine. Of pleasant orange flavour.

Matron Appointed.—Miss Dorothy Clancy, The Mall, Sligo, has been appointed Matron of Lifford Hospital.

If they cost a lot more

. . . than others, shirts from Seale's would still be an excellent choice, for they fit better, wear better, wash better; and, because the designs are all distinguished and many of them are exclusive, look better.

But shirts from Seale's cost no more than others of anything approaching their quality, so there's really no reason why you shouldn't buy your shirts there. In fact, there are several excellent reasons why you should. With two collars, from 17/6, or to measure from 23/6.

Trinity Week Cricket Should Be Good

DUBLIN University may make amends for their disappointing display against Pembroke in this week's Cup match when the same teams meet to-morrow in the League.

With Boucher in such dangerous bowling form Phœnix should experience little difficulty in disposing of Clontarf. Although the latter have victories over Merrion and Civil Service to their credit, they have yet to display any sign of the batting potentialities which they were credited with possessing at the beginning of the season.

Y.M.C.A. are capable of springing a surprise, but Merrion, who have several promising young batsmen in their ranks, are fancied to account for them at Anglesea road, while Leinster should not be hard put to it to beat Civil Service at Phœnix Park.

One of the most interesting fixtures for some time will be the match between Sir John Maffey's XI. and Dublin University, which will be played on Monday and Tuesday next (Trinity Week). Nearly all Sir John's team have figured in first-class cricket in England, and, although some of them will be suffering from lack of practice, the game will be a change from the usual inter-club matches to which the cricketing public have been confined since war broke out, and should prove an attractive affair.

Outstanding on the team is C. R. Maxwell, considered to be one of the best amateur batsmen-wicket-keepers prior to the war. Probably his greatest effort was his 268 against Leicester in 1935, when he was associated with Sir Julien Cahn's team, for whom he also played against Ireland.

Sir John Maffey's XI. was published on Wednesday. The University team will be:—J. V. Luce, W. J. Moynan, S Barnes, S. S. Fleming, N. B. Hool, P Isaacson, P. R. Oliver, I. R. H. Jones, J. E. Sweetman, W. G. Haughton and R. G. Harrison.

Fixtures:—

To-morrow.
Pembroke v. Dublin University. Sydney Parade.
Phœnix v. Clontarf. Phœnix Park.
Civil Service v. Leinster. Phœnix Park.
Merrion v. Y.M.C.A. Anglesea road.

Sunday.
J. A. O'Donnell's XI. v. Leinster. Rathmines.

Monday and Tuesday.
Sir John Maffey's XI. v. Dublin University. College Park.

Close Finishes at the Junction

THERE was a very big attendance at Limerick Junction yesterday, and the tote receipts of £2,287 were the best for any meeting at the venue, as also was the double pool of £264 10/-. Only two investors succeeded in naming the winners of the double, Oakfield and Lord Barter, and they received £119 0/6 each.

Backers started well when the first three favourites scored, but in the cases of Singlepeeper and Scotch Broom they were not on too good terms with themselves until the post was passed. Singlepeeper came from an outside price to favouritism for the Maddenstown Hurdle, and he got home by a length after a fine finish with Passeport II.

Closer even was the battle between Scotch Broom and King of the Jungle for the King's Plate. Twice in a long drawn out finish King of the Jungle got his head in front, but the Heath trained filly responded gamely to her rider's effort and scored by a head. Oakfield got the better of Hamlet by a short head in the Barronstown 'Chase, and only a short head and a head separated the first three in the Ballykisteen Plate. Border Knight looked to have the Ballingarry 'Chase in safe keeping when he jumped the last fence in front, but he was run out of it by Lord Barter, who came with a strong run. Roebuck readily landed the odds in the last race.

Kingsway Now Favourite

Kingsway took the place of his stable-companion, Way In, as favourite for the Derby at the Victoria Club call-over yesterday, when 6 to 1 was offered against him after 13 to 2 had been taken. Nasrullah also shortened in price and advanced from 21 to 2 to 8 to 1. The feature of the betting was the support given Pink Flower, who was backed to win £11,000, and High Chancellor was in good demand, being supported to win £7,000. Persian Gulf, as the result of his moderate running at Newmarket this week, went out to 66 to 1.

The only Oaks candidate backed was Why Hurry. Prices:—

(By HAROLD C. BROWN.)

JACK DOYLE sparred four rounds with Brendan Reilly and Jack Phœnix at Dalymount Park, Dublin, yesterday afternoon. Neither Reilly nor Phœnix was big enough nor clever enough to provide Doyle with more than a modicum of exercise, and, while it was obvious that Doyle could have put either of them "to sleep" had he so desired, that game old teetotaller, Phœnix, showed that it was not impossible to hit the ex-Guardsman.

Much more interesting than the work-out was the talk I had with Doyle both before and after the exhibition. Doyle has been taking plenty of exercise, and in the last three weeks he had taken ten or twelve pounds off his weight. He expects to scale very few pounds more than 16 stone on Friday next, when his fight with Chris Cole takes place at Dalymount.

In reply to a question about his fitness, Doyle invited me to feel the muscles of his arms, legs and abdomen. He certainly is carrying very little fat, and, if I had thought of sparring thirty seconds with him for the experience, the idea quickly was put aside as a piece of Wagnerian recklessness.

"Have you any apprehensions about your husband's fighting?" I asked Movita (Mrs. Doyle) when we were alone for a moment. "I think he can take care of himself," she replied. She never has seen him fight, but intends to be present at Dalymount next Friday.

Doyle in the past was inclined to go rather wild in the excitement of a fight. He says so himself. With increasing years, he said yesterday, he has realised the importance of fighting with his brain. Unless his behaviour in the gymnasium and socially is a mere façade, Doyle certainly is a very different person from the youngster who acted with such recklessness in the past. His egotism has been tempered and his spirit controlled.

"What about Cole?" I asked Gerald Egan, the promoter. "The public is interested in what he is doing." Mr. Egan assured me that Cole also is training hard, and while, being based in Mullingar, he escapes a lot of the publicity devoted to Doyle, that does not mean that he is neglecting to get himself as fit as possible for next Friday's encounter.

My own impression is that, while Doyle's strength cannot be called in question, he may not be as hard "inside" as the Mullingar boy. If Cole can avoid being seriously hit in the first few rounds, he may trouble Doyle quite a bit; and, of course, if he succeeds in putting Doyle temperamentally off his balance, anything may happen.

This will be Doyle's first appearance in the ring in Eire, but in 1932 he fought as an amateur in Ballymena, beating Garda J. Mulligan on points. The supporting programme next Friday will be:—

Butcher Howell (Cork) v. Alex. Woods (Belfast).
Sean Clancy (Dublin) v. Spike McCormack (Dublin).
Eddie Downey (Dublin) v. Jack Lenihan (Cork).
Mickey Quinn (Galway) v. Eddie Murphy (Cork).
Billy Phelan (Dublin) v. Chick Feery (Dublin).

U.C.D. Retain Sherlock Cup

University College gained their fourth victory—the third in succession—in the Lorcan Sherlock Cup, at the Grange yesterday, beating Wanderers, twice winners of the trophy, by 3 1/2 strokes. The prize for the best nett also went to the University, T. Halpenny and J. Thompson, off 11 1/2, having a good 71 1/2. Ten clubs of the Leinster Branch, I.R.F.U., were represented.

304 1/2—University College—T. Halpenny and J. Thompson (11 1/2), 71 1/2; T. P. Hogan and G. Purcell (9 1/2), 74 1/2; B. J. Scannell and T. Morris (2 1/2), 78 1/2; G. D. Murnaghan and N. V. Hogan (10), 80.

More Big Prices For Greyhounds

Creamery Beauty, the property of Mr. T. Quinn, winner over 550 yards at Shelbourne Park on Wednesday night, in 32.14 secs., headed the list of prices at the Shelbourne Park Greyhound Sales yesterday, being knocked down to Mr. James Savage, acting in cross-Channel interests, for 600 gns., an exceptional price for a bitch. Crutchy Dan, fourth in the same race, was reserved at 325 gns. Mr. Savage also secured Strolling West, winner of two races at Shelbourne Park in April, for 350 gns., the second highest price of the sale.

Food Prices in Two Great Irish Cities

Striking Differences in Many Respects

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

"WE get plenty of food." This was the opinion expressed by Malone road residents and working people living on £4 to £5 per week when an "Irish Times" reporter went to Belfast last week to find out the position after reading the letter from Mr. Sean MacEntee's friend in that city.

A Belfast grocer, who had recently returned from a visit to Dublin, said that, in his opinion, the price of food was at least 25 per cent. more in Dublin than in Belfast; that all essential commodities are rationed and controlled in price, which ensures even distribution to rich and poor.

The Same Prices For All People

It does not matter whether housewives deal in the big cash stores or in exclusive shops. They pay the same price for commodities, and, what is more, the rationing system means they get their due. Belfast women are making jam, and they can substitute their monthly jam ration for an extra pound of sugar during the fruit months.

Most of the former regular customers in Dublin have almost forgotten when they were given a pot of jam of any kind, but Belfast housewives can buy 1lb. per head per month for their families, and can take their choice from such varieties as gooseberry at 11d. per lb., damson 1s. 0 1/2d., strawberry 1s. 1d., bramble jelly 1s. 1 1/2d., or marmalade 11d. and 1s.

LITTLE SUGAR

"I hardly ever have an egg," said a factory mechanic, whose income is £4 per week, "but my wife uses egg substitutes. We have sausages and mash twice a week, liver once a week, and potted meat with bread and butter for tea." Pork sausages, which are 1s. 1d. per lb., are unrationed; liver, which is also unrationed, can be obtained at 1s. 2d. and 1s. 10d. per lb., according to requirement, and potted meats, which are rationed on points, are available in great variety, among them being ox tongue at 3s. 6d. per lb., meat roll at 7 1/2d. per 10 oz. tin. Meat and fish pastes range from 3 1/2d. to 8d.

In a bakery, which was well stocked with plain loaves, slightly sweetened currant bread, and buns at 1d. each, a woman shopper admitted that she had queued up for chocolate biscuits. An assistant said that customers might buy as much bread as they pleased, but pastries, which were limited to jam tarts and custard pies, were curtailed to a dozen per customer. They cost 2d. each, and bread 2 1/2d. per lb. loaf "We can get as many potatoes as we want, but no new potatoes are on the market yet," said a housewife. Potatoes are controlled at 11d. per stone.

FISH NOW AND THEN

Fish, which is unrationed, is obtainable only at certain periods. Last week lobsters were on sale at 3s. per lb., plaice at 1s. 4d., cod at 1s. 2d., and finnan haddock at 1s. 4d. and 1s. 7d.

"I had a large portion of fried plaice in a restaurant for 2s.," the reporter writes, "and I could have had roast chicken for 4s. At supper, in a private house that evening, my hostess offered me a choice of brill or a fish pie made from dried fish."

Prices in Both Cities Compared

The following table shows comparative prices of a few commodities in the two cities:—

State Case Closes in Wife Murder Trial

The trial of Martin Griffin (48), dairyman, of Bushy Park, Galway, who is charged with the murder of his wife, Bridget Griffin, entered upon its third day at the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday. The crime is alleged to have been committed about February 28 last.

Mary Kellaghan, daughter of a publican at Bushy Park, gave evidence that Mrs. Connolly, his mother-in-law, had resided with Griffin until her death in mid-February last. Witness gave evidence of the number of Griffin's visits to her father's public house, and said that another person would consume far more drink without showing the same effects. On the day of Mrs. Connolly's funeral the Griffins were supplied with a half-pint of whiskey, half-pint of sherry, 2 1/2 dozen bottles of stout, a quarter-barrel of stout, two bottles of whiskey and two bottles of port. For a year before his mother-in-law's death Griffin had kept off the drink. Witness said that three or four pints would have an "awful" effect on Griffin—the same effect on him as twenty pints would have on another man.

Augustine Kellaghan, brother of the previous witness, gave evidence of meeting Griffin on Sunday, February 28, at about 5.40 p.m., and going with him on his milk round, after which Griffin had unsuccessfully tried to enter several public houses. They later drove to Miss Doyle's, where Griffin was for about eight minutes out of witness's sight.

Cross-examined by Mr. J. C. Conroy, who, with Mr. Barra O Briain (instructed by Mr. J. C. O'Donnell, Galway) defended, witness said that in the last week of February Griffin appeared to have been drinking heavily.

Ml. Coyne, publican, replying in Irish to Mr. O Briain, said he had known accused for seven years, and had never seen him in a drunken state. Griffin had not been in his house on the Sunday in question. Answering Mr. Justice Overend, witness said he did not supply Griffin with a bottle of stout at 5.30 p.m. on that Sunday.

"APPEARED DAZED"

Margaret Kellaghan, of the Central Hotel, Galway, said that Griffin called to her brother's licensed premises on Sunday, February 28, between 11 and 12 o'clock. She made tea for him, and then he had a hot whiskey and a couple of bottles of stout. When he left that day he took a half-dozen of stout with him. He appeared to be dazed, but witness would not say that he was drunk.

Brigid Hynes, an employé in the licensed premises of Ml. Coyne, said that on the Sunday evening accused made two efforts to get into the public-house, but she refused to let him in. She would say that he was not sober.

Peter Griffin, farmer, a brother of the accused, said that between February 19 and 28 he met his brother on several occasions. On one of these occasions the accused was very drunk.

This concluded the case for the prosecution, and the further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. J. J. Duncan (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

Brewers Awarded Damages

In an action of Arthur Guinness, Son and Company, Ltd., against Thomas Gaffney, wholesale and retail tea, wine, and spirit merchant, Fairview, Dublin, Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, in the High Court yesterday, gave an injunction to restrain Mr. Gaffney from passing off as extra stout made by Messrs. Guinness, stout or porter which was not their manufacture, or extra stout of the company mixed with other beer, water, or other substances, or stout or beer inferior in gravity to that of the company's manufacture.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy also gave Messrs. Guinness £25 damages and allowed them their costs.

Messrs. Guinness stated that on December 22 and 31, and January 9 and 14 last, Mr. Gaffney sold as their extra stout, stout or beer which was not their genuine extra stout.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore, K.C., who, with Mr. Newett (instructed by Messrs. Fred Sutton and Co.), appeared for Messrs. Guinness, said that they had offered to accept a public apology, but Mr. Gaffney took up the position that he could not accept the facts as stated, and did not accept any position other than that the company had to prove its case.

Mr. Maurice Walker, K.C., with whom was Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Messrs. Franks and Oulton), for Mr. Gaffney, said that his client's attitude was prompted by the fact that Messrs. Guinness desired him to sign an apology in a form which might expose him in the eyes of the public as knowingly selling an article as Guinness's stout that was not in fact their stout, but somebody else's manufacture. Having regard to the fact that he had had no opportunity to investigate the complaints until after the remainder of the consignment from which the samples had been taken had been sold, he was not in a position to controvert the allegations about the stout in the bottles complained of not being of the standard gravity. He was prepared to accept the position that the stout retailed by him on the dates mentioned was of the slightly reduced gravity alleged, and to give an undertaking in the terms asked in the notice of motion. He sincerely regretted what had occurred, and would take every step to see that it would not occur again.

Sale and Purchase of Scrap Iron

Under a new Order by the Minister for Industry and Commerce, persons engaged in the sale and purchase of scrap metal must be licensed. The Order also provides that persons who carry on the business of an iron foundry will require an iron founder's licence. Holders of such licence will be precluded from purchasing scrap cast iron except through the Secretary of the Iron Founders' Association of Eire. The Order has been made with the object of making available to foundries greater quantities of scrap cast iron, as well as to secure a more equitable distribution of available supplies.

Blyvoors Soar on Record Profits for May

EXPECTATIONS of important war developments again restrained activity in London Stock Markets yesterday, but the general tone was steady.

Of outstanding interest was the demand for Kaffirs on Cape and London buying. Blyvoor jumped 4s. 4 1/2d. to 68s. 9d., buying having been induced by the record profit of £11,909 for May. West Wits. rose 3/16 to 7 11/16, Western Reefs 7 1/2d. to 58s. 9d. and Western Holdings 3d. to 24s. 6d.

Diamond shares eased on profit-taking. De Beers Defd. declined 1/4 to 20 1/4. Consolidated 6d. to 38/3, and Anglo-American Invest. 9d. to 65/6.

Argentine Rails were quietly steady, though the weekly traffic returns made a mixed showing.

Dunlop Rubber, following Wednesday's advance, gained another 3d to 35/- after 35/3. Marks and Spencer at 50/1 1/2 were 4 1/2d. lower. In the Radio group, Cossor fell 6d. to 20/9, and E.M.I. 3d. to 22/9. In Breweries, Fremlins were again bought on the dividend, further rising 1/- to 47/-.

Among Oils, Shell Transport lost another 1/3 to 66/10 1/2 on fresh selling following the dividend and profit statement. Ultramar were 51/3 ex rights for the new share issue.

Although interest in Diamond shares has for the moment ceased to take a foremost place in Stock Exchange business, the position of the Anglo-American Investment Trust, Ltd., should not be overlooked. This company, with an issued capital of £2,500,000, has investments spread over the diamond industry, consisting of shareholdings in De Beers, the Diamond Trading Co., Cons. African Selection Trust, Cons. Diamond Mines of S.W. Africa, and Societe Miniere du Beceka. These were valued in its last balance sheet at £4,046,623, their market value being £5,151,643.

What the market value is to-day cannot be stated, although it must have increased substantially. For instance, its holding of De Beers Deferred have doubled in value, the price at the end of last year being 10 1/4, compared with 20 1/4 to-day. Similarly, Consolidated Diamond shares have risen in the same period from 14/- to 38/3.

The company has Debenture Stock, of which £949,000 is outstanding. Against this issue it holds £817,000 of Debentures in the Diamond Corporation, £700,000 of which were redeemed in December, 1942. The funds are held by the trustees of the Anglo-American Debentures and will be utilised on the 30th of this month for redemption purposes.

Last year the company's net profit was more than doubled and the dividend was increased from 7 1/2 p.c. to 15 p.c. From the announcements already made by De Beers and Consolidated Diamonds it is clear that the income of the company will be considerably increased in the coming year. The £1 shares are quoted at 65/6.

It is expected that the final dividend of Boots Pure Drug, due any day now, will be 4 p.c., maintaining the 24 p.c. dividend which has been paid in the past two years. The position of the company, so far as the market valuation of its shares is concerned, illustrates the course which has been taken by many industrial securities. Last year after the declaration of the dividend the 5/- shares stood at 34/-. To-day they are 4/-, and the yield offered is under three per cent. The last report showed that the company had made record sales, so there is good reason to believe that once the war-time burdens are reduced the company will return to its pre-war level of profits. This is the principal reason why the shares are tightly held and give so small an immediate return.

COMPANY NEWS

Dunlop Plantations—Net loss for 1942 £190, which deficit is carried forward.

Dunlop Cotton Mills—Trading profit £389,524 (against £409,008). No dividend on Ord.

Ind Coope and Allsopp.—Interim dividend 7 p.c. on the Ord. shares.

Selection Trust—Dividend of 8 3/4 p.c. (against 7 1/2 p.c.).

Home Rails Keep Firm

INTEREST on the Dublin Stock Exchange was on a small scale yesterday, and was mainly confined to Irish securities. The tone was generally steady to firm, although there were few outstanding movements to note.

Among Home Government Funds, 4 per cent. Exchequer Bonds declined to 111 1/2, but 4 1/2 per cent. Land Bonds recovered to 116 1/4. 3 1/2 per cent. War Loan closed unchanged at 103 5/8, but Dublin Port and Docks 5 per cent. Bridge advanced to 111.

Banks held quietly steady. Guinness units closed a shade better at 119/1 1/2.

Trading in Home Rails was at low ebb, but the tone was steadier. Great Northern Deb. improved to 77 1/2, and Great Southern Ord. rose to 10 1/8. Dublin Transport Ord. tended higher at 22/6.

Browne and Nolan Pref. shed pence at 24/6, but Cement Ord. moved up to 39/3. Dickens Leather Ord. advanced 1/3 to 35/-, and Goulding Ord rose to 27/9. J. G. Mooney Ord. gained 1/- at 55/-, while Green Cinema Pref. made headway to 17/- and Hugh Moore Ord. hardened to 3/4 1/2; but Irish Worsted "A" Ord. shaded off to 5/9. A number of other Irish Industrials were dealt in at unchanged levels.

Coats Ord. eased to 44/6, Brit. Match Ord. to 38/9, and Imperial Tobacco Ord. lost pence at 144/6. Imperial Chemical Ord. held 38/6, while Dunlop Rubbers quoted 34/9 and Lancashire Steel "A" Ord. 23/9.

Cork Girls Jailed

The two young Cork girls, Maureen Forrest, 33 Southern road, and Mary Angela Murphy, of 13 Anglesea street, who, on Tuesday at Cork Circuit Court, pleaded guilty to various counts of stealing clothing, furs, jewellery, etc., from Cork shops and £20 cash, came before Judge O'Connor yesterday for sentence. In all 27 Cork traders were concerned in the loss of goods. It was stated the balance would be refunded.

Judge O'Connor sentenced Maureen Forrest to twelve months' imprisonment and Mary Angela Murphy to eight months' imprisonment. He said he differentiated between them because, up to November last, when Forrest was committing larcenies Murphy had not joined her, but from the moment she did fall into line she certainly proved a very apt pupil. On the question of Angela Murphy's health he said he had considered the medical evidence as to the effects of imprisonment, but the matter was not for him. It was for the Minister, to whom a petition could be sent.

Sea Captains Tell of Posting Letters

In the case against William J. Grey, General Manager and Secretary of the Alliance and Dublin Gas Consumers' Co., and Harold Clifford Hoskins, former Transport Superintendent of the company, who are charged in the District Court with stealing 5,846 gallons of petrol, and also exporting postal packets contrary to the Emergency Powers Act, evidence was given yesterday by captains of the company's steamers that on a number of occasions they received letters which they posted in Great Britain. Some of these letters were received from Hoskins and others were handed to them at the office in D'Olier street by the manager's secretary.

Thomas Kenneuy, labourer at the company's garage in Barrow street, gave evidence of going, with two other employés, in a lorry driven by William Doyle, to the garage at Sir John Rogerson's quay. They had four empty drums and a hand pump. Stephen Treacy, an employé, unlocked the petrol pump at the garage and put down a rubber tube, by means of which they filled the four drums, each of which would hold about 45 gallons. When the drums were filled the lorry driver brought them to Barrow street, where two of them were taken off and placed in an oil store. William Doyle and he (Kennedy) then drove out to Mr. Grey's residence at Barnhill, Dalkey where they put the two forty-five gallon drums in a store, in which there were two similar drums. Some time later he brought back from Barnhill a drum which was leaking. He got instructions from Patrick Doran, another employé of the company, who is charged with aiding and abetting Grey and Hoskins, to go to the works in Pearse street and collect 12 barrels of oats and bring them to Barnhill. He only got three barrels, or, rather, three sacks of oats, which he brought to Barnhill.

The further hearing was adjourned till Monday next.

WOOL

BRADFORD—Although a good deal of business has been placed during the past few weeks, the majority of spinners are able to make prompt deliveries. There has been some delay in obtaining supplies of tops, but on the whole there is a steady flow of supplies through various processes. More inquiry is reported on the export account for piece goods.

Workmen's Compensation Act Point

In a Workmen's Compensation Act appeal the Supreme Court (Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Murnaghan, Mr. Justice Geoghegan, Mr. Justice O'Byrne, and Mr. Justice Black) held that there must be evidence that a person had attempted to obtain employment and had failed to find it before it could be decided that the person was entitled to the benefit of Section 24 of the Act, the effect of which is that if a workman, having so far recovered from his injury as to be fit for employment fails to obtain it as a consequence of the injury, the Court shall treat his incapacity as total.

The appeal was by Fyffe Couplings (Ireland), Ltd., James's street, Dublin, from an order of the Circuit Court awarding compensation on the basis of total incapacity to Miss Josephine Byrne, machinist, Mackin street, Dublin, whose hand had been crushed in a machine in the company's works last August.

The Chief Justice said that the Court was satisfied that there was no evidence that Miss Byrne had failed to obtain employment. Accordingly, the award, based on Section 24, must be discharged, and the case would be remitted to the Circuit judge, who would be at liberty to hear such evidence as might be adduced by either party, and assess the compensation to which Miss Byrne was entitled.

Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Messrs. Corrigan and Corrigan) appeared for the company; and Mr. O'Reilly (instructed by Mr. J. Bernard MacGarry) for Miss Byrne.

COMMISSION ON YOUTH UNEMPLOYMENT.
TAKING OF EVIDENCE.
NOTICE is hereby given that the Commission is prepared to consider evidence related to its Terms of Reference. Any person or organisation desiring to submit evidence to the Commission should communicate with the Secretary, Commission on Youth Unemployment, Department of Industry and Commerce, Kildare Street, Dublin, who will furnish particulars as to the procedure to be followed. The Terms of Reference of the Commission are:—
1. To examine and report on the extent and causes of unemployment amongst young persons of school-leaving age and under 20 years, and having regard to social, economic and financial considerations, to make recommendations as to the most practicable and desirable measures
(a) to prevent and remedy such unemployment,
(b) to guide such persons in their choice of a vocation, and
(c) to secure for such persons the most appropriate and efficient training to fit them to take a useful part in the economic life of the country.
2. To make recommendations as to control of the conditions of employment of young persons for the purpose of promoting their spiritual and physical welfare and their efficiency as workers, and of giving them opportunities of equipping themselves for more highly skilled work.
3. To make recommendations as to the most practicable and desirable measures for promoting the religious, intellectual and physical development of young persons.
It is particularly requested that enquiries should reach the Secretary not later than the 1st July, 1943.

The Russian Front

One of the problems that have been puzzling the military experts for the last few months has been the unusual lack of activity on the Russian front. Throughout the winter, while the Soviet armies were carrying out their remarkable counter-offensives, there was a general belief that, with the advent of spring, the Germans would repeat their tactics of last year, and would mount a large-scale offensive, calculated at least to regain their territorial losses. Several weeks have passed now since the end of the Russian thaws; but military activity on both sides—except in the Kuban area—has been virtually confined to reconnaissance work. So far there has been no sign of the expected offensive; and it is fairly obvious that Germans and Russians alike have been marking time. During the last few days there have been evidences of renewed activity. The Germans, after terrific air preparation, delivered an imposing attack on the Kalinin front, north-west of Moscow, evidently directed against the town of Velikie Luki, which was captured by the Russians during the winter. Velikie Luki is only about eighty miles from the Latvian frontier, and it seems that the Germans attach particular importance to its possession. For several days there has been severe fighting in the area. At first the Russians were forced to yield ground and suffered substantial losses; but, according to yesterday's bulletin from Moscow, they launched a strong counter-offensive on Wednesday, with the result that the Germans have been pushed back to their point of departure, leaving at least 2,000 dead in the field. Between Kursk and Orel, on the so-called Central front, there also has been some heavy fighting. The Germans some days back made a fierce air attack on Kursk, which is slightly larger than Cork, and, enjoying a local superiority in the air, they apparently did appreciable damage to the city. Here again, however, the Russian land forces are reported to have gone over to the offensive, and, according to the Soviet reports, they have scored a notable success.

The only other part of the front from which renewed activity is reported is the Kuban. The German News Agency admits that the Russians have effected a partial break-through in this area, where bitter fighting still is in progress. Fifteen Russian tanks smashed their way through the German lines; and it is evident that the Soviet High Command hopes to gain possession of Novorossisk, and eventually to drive the Germans from the Kerch peninsula, if not from the Crimea. The general situation in Russia is intensely interesting. It is just two years since the German Army invaded Russia, sweeping all before it in the first momentum of its advance, and carrying the swastika almost to the gates of Moscow. Then came the memorable counter-attack by Marshal Timoshenko and General Zhukov, which saved the Russian capital, and drove the invaders back during the severe frosts of the winter. Last year again the Germans attacked during the summer. Again they were successful, pressing forward this time to the suburbs of Stalingrad, and actually reaching the Volga at certain points; but again the Russians counter-attacked during the winter, with the result, inter alia, that Marshal Paulus's Sixth German Army was annihilated before Stalingrad, and the Wehrmacht suffered what was admitted by the Germans themselves to be the heaviest military reverse of the war. Since that time the Russian front has been comparatively quiet. The Germans recaptured Kharkov, and retained an important bridgehead round Novorossisk in the Kuban; but during the last four months or so it has been evident that Germans and Russians alike were regrouping their forces, and laying their plans for the summer campaign. Now the summer is here. It looks as if both sides are waiting to see what happens elsewhere before they commit themselves to military activity on a large scale. Naturally, the Germans are anxious to find out what the British and Americans propose to do in fulfilment of their promise to Marshal Stalin to set up a "second front." The Russians also have a vital interest in this matter, and, apart from local attacks, such as that in the Kuban, they, too, are holding their hands. Sooner or later, however, whether or not the British and Americans invade the continent, the present tension on the Russian front is bound to break. Two mighty armies are facing each other; and each is determined, if at all possible, to avoid a third winter campaign.

Costs of Living

A few mornings ago we printed a diagram that compared the cost of living figures in the twenty-six counties and in Great Britain. Those figures stand at 198 for Great Britain—the datum line is 100, in 1914—and 273 for the twenty-six counties. This morning we offer a comparison of the prices of a number of commodities in common household use in Dublin and Belfast—a comparison that may explain the striking difference between the cost of living ratios. To the casual eye that surveys this table it would appear that only in respect of intoxicating liquor is the Southern city better off than its Northern counterpart; in virtually every other respect the Belfast breadwinner possesses a notable advantage. Eggs cost 2s. a dozen in Belfast, against 2s. 2d. in Dublin; bread, 2½d., against 3½d., a pound loaf; "old" potatoes, 11d., against 1s. 10d.; washing soda, 1s. 3d., against 1s. 6d., a stone; sugar, 3d. a pound, against 5d.; candles, 1s., against 1s. 11d., a pound. It is little wonder, in such circumstances, that the people of Belfast can afford to pay 10s. in the pound as income-tax, or can endure the exceptional drains on their resources that are involved by a state of war. The table, of course, does not pretend to compare the relative "prosperity" of the two cities. A spokesman for Dublin can reply that, if the citizen of Belfast obtains his eggs at the rate of 2s. a dozen, he can obtain only three of them in a week, and that he counts himself lucky to be permitted two ounces of butter in the week, against the Dubliner's half-pound. He can argue that, if the Belfast housewife were permitted to buy more of certain commodities at any price within or beyond reason, she would pay it with gratitude. He may weigh up the relative advantages of an unlimited supply of goods at an uncontrolled price, or of a limited supply at a strictly controlled price. All that is fair comment—though he must not forget that in Dublin many commodities, if not officially rationed, are in such short supply that they might as well be rationed. Bacon, potatoes, candles and porridge meal, for example, have been virtually unobtainable at one time or another. In regard to the average household's supplies, indeed, there seems to be little to choose between the two cities.

When all, however, has been said, we think that the average Dublin householder will contemplate the lot of his Belfast counterpart with some envy. Rationing, such as is practised in the North, does no' entail starvation; nobody seems to be hungry—nobody, that is, who would not have been hungry in ordinary circumstances—and certainly the lot of the poor man is better there than here. Without rationing, price control is difficult of accomplishment; with rationing, it becomes comparatively simple. For a long time past this newspaper has advocated the rationing not merely of a few commodities in everyday use, but of the great mass of them, and we urge whatever Government may be in power after the forthcoming election to give the suggestion its most earnest thought. It is all wrong that necessities of life, produced within the country, should be "unobtainable"; the existence of queues for such commodities is an outrage against common sense. Rationing, after all, operates in two ways. It is intended not merely to ensure that nobody shall have more than a certain share; its equally, if not more, important function is to ensure that everybody shall have the share to which he is entitled, and at a price which he can pay. We approve of Mr. de Valera's so-called Standstill Order, which forbids any general increase in wages; but it is incomplete, illogical and burdensome without a corresponding control of prices; and effective control of prices, we repeat, depends upon the establishment of a rationing system. We would remind the Government that complaints never are heard against the supply of such goods as have been rationed already—tea, butter, sugar and the rest. What most people resent with bitterness is their inability to obtain unrationed goods, and the high price—controlled or uncontrolled—that they are asked for them. This is a point that with some advantage might be raised during the election campaign. So far, while there has been a lot of recrimination, there has been little or no effort to concentrate on the realities of to-day; and the chief reality, so far as most people are concerned, is the high cost of living. If that cost can be reduced, or even maintained at its present level, by rationing, this country ought not to be too proud to follow the British example.

"BLUE PETER"

The "Blue Peter" sherry and cold snack bar has now been opened by Messrs. Mitchell, at their premises, 11 Grafton street, until recently occupied by Messrs. Scholls. This quick service counter adjoins Mitchell's Restaurant, and should prove a popular spot for morning sherry, coffee, cold snacks, sandwiches, ices, etc. The premises are tastefully decorated, and there is a delightful selection of cooked viands which may be purchased for home consumption.

FIRST EXHIBITION BY YOUNG PAINTER

At her first exhibition of oil pictures and water-colours, which was opened at 7 St. Stephen's Green by Mr. John Keating, R.H.A., on Wednesday, Rosemary Coyle reveals herself as a young painter with a good sense of design and an unusually alert eye for a good subject. She sees pictures everywhere. Whether it be in Fitzwilliam square or in Killiney, before an old archway in an out-of-the-way street, or a bunch of flowers on a table, she seems to be able to get through the processes of selection and rejection of what is and is not necessary for her pictorial purposes almost automatically and at once. For her pictures carry a suggestion of spontaneity, of having been painted delightedly on the spot, that gives her whole exhibition a welcome air of youthful eagerness and vivacity. Her "Wicklow Street" is crowded, her "Spanish Arch" deserted. "The Vico Road from Killiney Hill" leads from a green foreground dotted with villas to a vast expanse of sea and sky. But in all their variety they have each a fullness of pictorial content, of form and colour that shows the artist's grasp of essentials.

What she has not yet got is the mature artist's sense of the beauty of the painting medium itself, that capacity so to use paint as to transmute observed actuality into visual poetry. It is, to put it oracularly, that quality that is called precisely "quality." In other words, Miss Coyle's handling of her materials is still rather tentative. But that is natural to her youth and there is no reason why, with years and practice, it should not become more mellow.

IRISH WILLS

PRINTING TRADE'S WAR PROBLEMS

A review of the printing trade during the emergency was given by Mr. George Hetherington, of the Dublin Young Master Printers, at a conference held in Dublin yesterday at Commercial Buildings between delegates of that body and of the Belfast Young Master Printers. In 1938, he said, publishing, printing, book-binding, and engraving employed 7,000 persons in the twenty-six counties. The wage bill came to £1,100,000—the fourth largest in the State—and it employed almost twice as many male workers at wages over £5 per week as any other industry. Output had undoubtedly fallen during the war, but the ratio of hours worked to value of material used had moved very considerably in favour of labour. This had been achieved by a production policy of selling the limited quantity of material available in such a way as to produce the maximum amount of work to the factory.

Since the outbreak of the war employment had been on a rotational basis in order to keep employment at the maximum figure. A wage increase of 5/- had been granted in February, 1940, and more recently, as a result of an application to the Wages Tribunal, a bonus of 6/- to adults and 3/- to juveniles. There had been, however, a shortage of skilled lithographers in the past six months. They were not training a sufficient number of apprentices for this trade, and of those who were being trained only a fraction were receiving adequate technical instruction.

THE PAPER WORRY

Paper had been the greatest worry of the trade, but, fortunately, most printers in the years before the war carried far larger stocks than would normally be desirable. There had followed, however, a period of great uncertainty. Eventually the British paper controller decided to allot Eire a quota of pre-war requirements. To ensure equable distribution, a new body, E.P.I.C. (Eire Paper Imports Committee) came into operation, which had been successful in distributing paper fairly. So far they had been allowed between 10 per cent. and 12 per cent. of pre-war supplies. The board quota, however, was only 1 per cent., which had been supplemented by imports from America in Irish ships.

The Irish mills had done their utmost in producing paper from waste. In organising the collection of waste for the mills the Government had made an order compelling printers to sell their waste to the wastepaper merchants at the same rates as householders, instead of selling it direct to the mills at the same rate as the merchants. The group would press for a revision of this arrangement, not necessarily because of the financial loss it entailed, but because it discouraged the collection of waste.

FUTURE CONFERENCES

Mr. Frank Lowe, past chairman of the Dublin Master Printers' Association, welcoming the Belfast delegates, said that he hoped that the conference was the first of many such conferences between, not alone the Master Printers of Dublin and Belfast, but also the printers of all Ireland. The Dublin Young Master Printers had been very fertile in producing ideas for the development of the trade.

Mr. Joseph Toner, of the Belfast group, returning thanks for their hospitable reception, said that in Belfast the trade had as many difficulties as it had in the South—sometimes, they thought, more. At present there was an abnormal shortage of skilled men in the printing trade.

Mr. Colm O Lochlainn, in an address on the printing trade, said that some of the finest book work ever done in Ireland had been done by the Trinity College Press, which between 1738 and 1750 produced a series of Latin and Greek books, perfect in paper, choice of type, tasteful in their margins, and as free from error as is ever possible in making books of that kind. Fine printing in Ireland was also associated with the name of Michael Henry Gill.

DONEGAL MINE EXPLOSION
APPEAL FOR FUNDS

The following appeal is made on behalf of the bereaved relatives of the Ballymanus, Co. Donegal, mine explosion victims:—

In present times of distress and frequently recurring hardship it is with the utmost reluctance that we, the undersigned, from our local knowledge of the circumstances, tardily issue this appeal. Immediate needs have been partly met by the £200 donation from the Central Council of the Red Cross Society, and some other big-hearted friends. Even with the cordial approval of the Bishop of the Diocese, the Most Rev. Dr. MacNeely, it is particularly unpleasant for the Parish Priest to be associated so soon again with a calamity in some ways more distressful than that in nearby Arranmore, in November, 1935, which evoked such widespread sympathy.

Our chief concern is to make it known that the victims are of the same class of migratory labourers as perished in the Arranmore disaster.

To relieve the grave and, in some cases, the acute distress of the bereaved, we bespeak your kind sympathy.

Subscriptions will be gratefully received by any of the undersigned.

The appeal is signed by:—

John (Canon) McAteer, P.P., Burtonport.

Patrick Gallagher, Templecrone Co-operative Society, Dungloe.

Cormac Breslin, T.D., Bunbeg.

Anthony Sharkey, merchant, Annagry.

Brian O'Donnell, Gaelic College, Ranafast.

John G. Boyle, Merchant, Dungloe; and the joint secretaries and treasurers are: Daniel E. O'Boyle, Co. Council, Kincasslagh; Rev. T. McGinley, C.C., Annagry, and Rev. John Glacken, C.C., Kincasslagh.

DANCE
ROYAL ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY

The annual members' dinner and dance of the Royal Zoological Society was held last night in the Gardens, Phœnix Park. There were about 275 guests at the dinner and over 700 at the dance. Music was supplied by Ralph Silvester's band.

The attendance included: Capt. A. Gordon and Mrs. Gordon (Chairman of the Ladies' Committee), Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Mitchell (Hon. Sec.), Miss G. M. Dunbar (Assistant Sec.), Mr. and Mrs. A. Farrington, Prof. and Mrs. T. G. Browne, Mrs. M. Atock, Mr. and Mrs. Bretland, Col. and Miss Doherty, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Flood, Mr. and Mrs. G. Shackleton, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Healy, Miss B. Stokes, Dr. and Mrs. B. Pringle, Mr. and Mrs. Toby Millar, Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Woods, Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Dockeray, Mr. and Mrs. R. Craigie, Dr. R. M. Corbet, Mr. Lewis Crosby, Mr. R. N. Jenkins, Dr. A. T. McKay, Prof. Bayley Butler, Mrs. Cawley, Mr. and Mrs. McCraith Blakeney, Dr. and Mrs. Doolin, Mr. and Mrs. K. E. L. Deale, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Healy, Mr. W. J. Hurley, Dr. L. CRUISKEEN LAWN
By Myles na gCopaleen

FEW people will believe that I once stood on the same platform with John McCormack. Yet such is the fact. If my memory does not deceive me it was the No. 2 Departure Platform, Kingsbridge. The two men took an instant liking to one another. I invited the singer into my reserved first class compartment. Out came the Hugo Wolff scores, and for the next three hours we hummed and tapped and whistled through twenty or thirty songs, completely unaware of the world around us. That is the way with artists.

To-day I cannot quite recollect precisely how this pleasant situation was in a trice completely changed. I seem to remember hearing a ticket-checker saying "Jimmy is trying to jam her again" to the dining-car attendant whom he encountered when passing through our compartment. This odd remark must have penetrated through the musical anaesthetic which had sequestered my brain in a soft place hung with magic mantles: all I can say is that instantaneously I had leapt up, thrown the music sheets to the four winds and was already rushing madly up the train.

Looking back over the incident in the calmness with which the years have invested it, I think it must have been the one word "Jimmy" which caused my sub-conscious radio to pick up the ticket-checker's remark. Steam men of the last generation—notably those who recall the stirring events of 1919 in the Inchicore shops—will be in no doubt as to whom I refer to. The man is now dead, and in charity we will give him no fuller name than "Jimmy." But Jimmy was the most depraved and abandoned steam man in these islands; he was worse—a sadist. Ostensibly a driver, with Grade I rating, he hated all engines. It did not matter whether they were single expansions jobs, compounds, de Glehn simples, "street-cars" or the beautiful Manley superheats that came in about 1921 (making that year an historic date in Irish history) he loathed them all. His ambition in life was to do as much damage as possible to as many engines as possible. So long as he could exquisitely hurt the delicate organs of a locomotive, then he was happy. His logs and repair books contained a staggering catalogue of "defects", breaks" etc. for each journey, no matter how new or well-conditioned the engine. He managed 531 complete breakdowns in ten years, probably sabotaged beyond repair about £500,000 worth of machinery in that time and caused endless disorganisation of traffic. Why he was not dismissed the first day he took the road is another of those mysteries one associates with the G.S.R. More than that one does not say.

To go back: I raced down the train, dealing very roughly, I fear, with any obstruction whether human or otherwise that came against me. Soon I was face to face with the locked door which separated me from the engine. It was a stout door and possibly it would have baulked me had I not heard clearly through it the poor old brute's laboured breathing: evidently the rotter had succeeded in jamming her valves. In an instant I had smashed down the door with my shoulder; one leap and I was clambering across the coal to the foot-plate. And there he was, stooped at some other villainy, the gleam of pleasure on his evil face. In one bound I had reached him, caught him by the neck and spun him round. "Oh no, you don't!" I muttered through my teeth as my fist connected with his jaw. He went down with a thud and, thorough bully that he was, he quickly retreated up on the coal where he sat watching me with yellow baleful eyes.

I did what I could, of course. By skilfully blowing down—"to reduce priming," muryaa—he had jammed her valves wide open. To my surprise I recognised the engine. None other than she whom we called "Cissie." "Cissie" was an old-fashioned 1912 simple. The funny coincidence was that she had been re-boilered under my supervision in 1917 when I was Guest Boilerhouse Supervisor at Inchicore, on loan there courtesy the G.N.R. (for I was at that time O.C. Design Room 2, Dundalk).

Suffice it to say that I worked her up to a draw-bar horse power of 3870 (!) before we reached Mallow. And this despite the fact that after one minute at the controls I could see that a sack of fine cinders had been emptied into the feed water.

Alas for human villainy!

OBITUARY
VERY REV. T. DONNELLAN, P.P.

The death took place yesterday of the Very Rev. Thomas Donnellan, P.P., V.F., Trim, after a very short illness. Born at Coralstown, Co. Westmeath, seventy-one years ago, he was educated at St. Finian's Seminary, Navan, and was ordained at Maynooth in 1896. He was appointed parish priest of Trim in 1925, and prior to his appointment in Trim he was in charge of Dysart Parish.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

SIR FARQUAHAR BUZZARD, Medical Referee of the Non-Profit Making Central Provident Association, which is guaranteed by the Nuffield Provident Fund to the extent of £150,000, is visiting Belfast next week, with officials of the Association, to attend a representative conference, at which proposals for the formation of a Nuffield Ulster Provident Association will be under consideration. The Association in Northern Ireland will work, it is expected, on the same lines as in Britain, where its benefits are being largely availed of by people with incomes of over approximately £5 to £6 a week, who, for this reason, are outside the field of such very useful organisations as the Hospital Savings Association. The Central Provident Association provides the cost of consultant and in-patient hospital and nursing home pay-bed treatment for its members and their families at inexpensive yearly subscription rates.

Irish Banking

"In actual practice, the trend of the Irish banks last year was still not to employ in Eire an increasing part of the resources placed at their disposal in Eire," says The Statist, in a review of the "Banking Problem in Eire." "But for reasons which were so obviously outside the banks' control, there could be no question of invoking the new Central Bank Act in order to 'remedy' the position. In all other ways the passage of the Central Bank Act and the setting up of the new bank have left the banking situation in Eire entirely unaffected. The wide powers given to the Central Bank have remained entirely unutilised—as they must do as long as the structure of Irish banking remains what it is, as long as the link between the Irish and British currencies remains as close, and as long as the principal Irish banks find in the London market the means of employing their liquid resources, for which the market in Eire can offer no effective alternative."

Discoverer of Thompson

The honour done to that great writer, Mr. Kilfrid Meynell, who has been made a Commander of the O.B.E., is one of the most deserved, as it is one of the most belated honours in this week's birthday list; for Mr. Meynell is 91, the husband of the poet and essayist, Alice Meynell, and father of Viola Meynell, the novelist, and of Francis Meynell, of Nonesuch Press fame. Mr. Meynell discovered Francis Thompson, and edited this genius's poetry. It was to "Merry England," a magazine, of which Mr. Meynell was editor, that Thompson sent his soiled manuscripts, the covering letter to which contained the footnote: "Kindly address your rejection to the Charing Cross Post Office."

New Knight

Lord Provost William Y. Darling, of Edinburgh, one of the new Knights, is a draper and bookseller by trade. He travelled widely and was a journalist, a tea planter, a commercial traveller, a shop assistant, an auctioneer and a fruit farmer, before settling down again after the last war. He has been one of the most prominent members of the Edinburgh Town Council since he entered it in 1933.

Aspirin Overdoses

The danger of taking overdoses of aspirin was stressed yesterday by an East Anglian Coroner, at an inquest on the body of a 21-year-old labourer, who was in the habit of taking fifteen grains daily for rheumatic fever, on a doctor's advice, but who exceeded this quantity on the day before his death. "It is a little disquieting to me to think that a drug of this kind, which obviously can quite easily have fatal effects, should be readily obtainable at stalls and shops pretty well everywhere," said the Coroner, returning a verdict of "death by misadventure."

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Service

I heard recently of a well-known member of the Irish Bar, who, on a visit to America, called in to see a certain judge in New York. The office was occupied only by the judge's clerk, who explained that the judge was away on a shooting trip—"and he will be awful sore at missing you."

However, the clerk supplied the deficiency as well as he could by conducting a long conversation about the profession in Ireland and America. He concluded by presenting the Irish visitor with a copy of the judge's book on "Legal Obscenity" (or something), because "the judge would like you to have it."

As the barrister was leaving the clerk called him back. "Here," he said, "let me autograph it for you. The folks back home won't know the difference." And he signed the judge's name with a flourish, and then bowed the visitor out.

Discordant Architecture

In these days when the replanning of our towns and villages is so very common a topic of conversation, one cannot fail to be impressed by the acute ugliness of many roads in the suburbs, where the number of styles adopted in the construction of the houses is legion.

While walking up a suburban road not three miles from the G.P.O. I was suddenly struck by the discordant effect produced by this lack of symmetry, and, out of interest, I counted the different styles from one end of the road to the other, and, believe it or not, there were at least eighteen. In some cases two semi-detached houses were different in several details.

I have heard it argued that a little contrast brings out the good points in the varying styles, but it is hard to believe that these higgledy-piggledy eyesores are the result of scientific forethought or common-sense.

Every now and again the controversy blazes up concerning the rules of the footpath. At the moment it is agitating both London and Dublin. Should pedestrians be made to walk upon one side of the path? And, if so, which?

Correspondence with the rule of the road would argue for the left side, and so, I imagine, would the fact that on a 'bus, when both sides are vacant, we tend to sit on the left. But a Londoner claims that pedestrians naturally walk on the right, and seems to think that it would have been much better to leave the whole thing alone than to impose any rules at all—especially in favour of the left.

In opposition to him (for he regards the introduction of centre-rails on public stairways as the ultimate confounding of confusion), a Dubliner demands that the line on the pavement outside the G.P.O. should be restored, and a "Keep to the Left (or Right)" notice set up. Well?

New Roads

The construction of new roads is receiving a good deal of attention in the post-war public works plans of several countries, including our own. One of the biggest projects mentioned to date is the tourist road through Co. Wicklow, but an even more important development might receive attention—the tourist road around Ireland.

If my memory has not gone astray, there is a fine stretch of road down in Co. Wexford which is virtually the only piece of this "ring" that has been built; yet discussions have gone on for years. Two factors in constructing such highways have recently been mentioned in Britain's post-war road plans, and they might be borne in mind here.

The first is that it is cheaper to construct a new road than to carry out major improvements on existing roads; and, secondly, that at least 2½ years elapse between the time of making the decision to build the road and the actual start of constructional work.

QUIDNUNC.

WEDDINGS

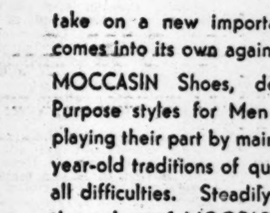

KENT—LAWLOR.—The wedding took place on June 2nd at the Church of the Holy Rosary, Harold's Cross, Dublin, of Mr. Eamonn Kent, B.Comm., son of the late Mr. M. Kent and of Mrs. Kent, Westfield road, Dublin, and Miss Angela Lawlor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Lawlor, Beltra, Leinster road, West, Rathmines. The ceremony, with Nuptial Mass and Papal Blessing, was performed by the Rev. Joseph Deery, C.C., assisted by the Rev. T. C. Murphy, O.Carm., the Rev. F. Little, C.C., and the Rev. J. Redmond, C.C. During the Mass Panis Angelicus was sung by Mr. Peter Dunn. The bride was given away by her father, and was attended by her sister, Miss Bridie Lawlor, H.Dip.E. Mr. Marcus Keane was best man. A reception was held at the Dolphin Hotel.

McMULLAN—LADLEY. — At Howth Presbyterian Church, Mr. David Gamble McMullan, son of Mr. William McMullan and of the late Mrs. McMullan, Cedargrove, Belfast, was married on June 1st to Miss Audrey Sybil Ladley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ladley, The Cottage, Portmarnock, Co. Dublin. The Rev. James McCaughey officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Poppy Ladley (sister) and Miss Jean MacDonald. Her train-bearer was Miss Iona King-French (niece of the bridegroom). Mr. George Pasker was best man. A reception was held at the Claremont Hotel, Howth.

Pekingese was Best.—The Pekingese champion, Wei Mun of St. Clair, owned by Col. R. St. C. Robinson and Miss G. Betty, was judged best dog at a show held by the S.P.C.A., North County Dublin Branch, at Warren Villas, Sutton.

Simple recipe restores colour to Grey Hair

Take years off your looks by giving your grey hair back its youthful colour. It's simple, safe, inexpensive, quick! Here's the recipe. To a bare half pint of water add one ounce of Bay Rum, a small box of Orlex Compound, and a quarter ounce of glycerine. That's all! Any chemist will make it up or supply the ingredients. Apply the mixture twice weekly and your grey hair will soon glow with natural colour. Orlex isn't sticky, won't rub off and doesn't colour the scalp. Tear out this recipe and begin saying good-bye to grey hair to-day. Distributors in Eire: Maurice FitzGerald and Co., Ltd., 8/9 Temple Lane, Dublin.

THE RICHEST SOURCE OF PROTECTIVE VITAMIN A AND SUNSHINE VITAMIN D

Medical science has concentrated protective Vitamin A and sunshine Vitamin D in Halicaps Halibut Liver Oil Capsules. You need these vital vitamins to build up your body's resources, to guard against colds and infectious diseases. And how easy Halicaps are to take! Just swallow them—no taste whatever.

Children, too, need Halicaps. They build strong teeth and sturdy limbs, protect them against colds and more serious ailments—particularly rickets.

Get a box of Halicaps from your chemist. Two strengths: Standard 3/3 per box; Extra Strong 4/6. Insist on Halicaps. Refuse substitutes.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE without Calomel—and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of vim and vigour.

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk, and the world looks punk.

Laxatives help a little, but a mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 1/3 and 3/-.

LINSFONT, BUNCRANA, CO. DONEGAL
SALE OF ATTRACTIVE FREEHOLD RESIDENCE

WE have been instructed to take offers (in writing) up to TUESDAY, 22nd JUNE, 1943, for that select Residence, the property of the Loreto Nuns, Omagh, known as Linsfont House.

The large two-storey dwellinghouse, containing numerous apartments, is in first-class order, with hot and cold water laid on, a spacious yard with many outoffices, all in perfect repair, and a fruit garden enclosed by a wall which surrounds the whole property. The residence is an attractive one.

Standing as it does on its own well-kept grounds of 6 acres 2 roods and 33 perches, it has a fine situation on the shores of Lough Swilly, about halfway between Buncrana and Dunnee, with an uninterrupted view of the lough for miles on either side, and the small bay just in front of the property is very suitable and safe for bathing.

The P.L. valuation is £21 10/-. Held for ever free of rent.

Her teeth are YOUR concern—

Every mother wants her children to grow up with strong, firm white teeth, safe from the danger of decay. Make sure of this by giving them the right care when they are young. Dentists advise the use of the one toothpaste containing 'Milk of Magnesia'*, which corrects acid-mouth, so often the cause of dental trouble.

The toothpaste to ask for is Phillips' Dental Magnesia. Train your children to use it night and morning. They love its pleasant, mild flavour. Sold everywhere 7½d, 1/1d and 1/10½d.

Phillips' Dental Magnesia

* 'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of magnesia.

Bisurated Magnesia ends Indigestion

Heartburn and all forms of Indigestion vanish after taking 'Bisurated' Magnesia. There are no ingredients more quick-acting than those contained in this wonderful remedy. Indigestion is the penalty of allowing excessive acid to accumulate in your stomach. This causes "burning" gases and distressing wind. If you suffer, ask your chemist for 'Bisurated' Magnesia. Powder or Tablets 6d. to 2/6.

"I find that however long I stay out in the open, sun, wind and rain, Pond's Cold Cream soothes and softens the skin. As a powder base, I find nothing equal to Pond's Vanishing Cream" says MISS GYPSY DENYS BURTON

POND'S CREAMS are hard to get

Take care of your Pond's Creams—they are hard to get, for the valuable ingredients in Pond's are very hard to obtain, and Pond's will not lower quality in order to increase quantity.

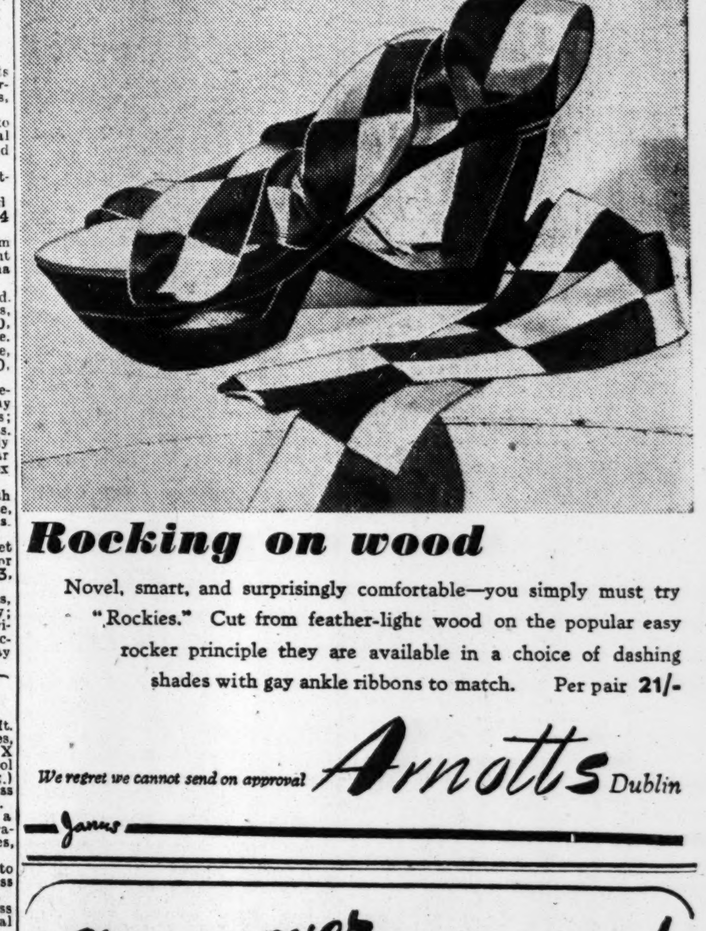

Follow these economy hints

Always measure out your Cold Cream with a very small spoon, such as an egg spoon. This amount will be sufficient to cover the whole face if you apply it with the tips of your fingers. After five minutes wipe off the cream with cotton wool wrung out of warm water.

Now here is how to get the most out of your Vanishing Cream. Before applying it, wash your face well with cold water and then dry. This makes the skin take less cream. Apply Pond's Vanishing Cream sparingly, with the tip of the little finger. There should be no surplus to rub off. Use it once a day only, and apply it only to the bridge of the nose, cheek bones, curve of the brow, and between the eyebrows. Do not apply your powder immediately, wait for two to three minutes to let the cream dry.

Although Pond's products are scarcer, they are still on sale in most shops. They are worth searching for.

POND'S ★ HARD TO GET—BUT STILL—YOUR PASSPORT TO BEAUTY
